- Inability to pay utility bills
- Inability to buy food
- Repatriation
- Medical expenses incurred due to the COVID-19 pandemic that cannot be recovered through a personal health insurance policy.

How to apply

Step 1: Submit an application

To apply, you need to submit an online application with the following supporting documents:

- Current identification: your student ID, plus one of either your passport, or driver's license;
- Bank statements: current official bank account statements (not screenshots of your bank account) for the past three months immediately prior to your application
- A personal statement: up to 300 words in length addressing the criteria for the Grant
- Proof of severe hardship: tenancy agreements, written report or reference and other material that demonstrates that the grant criteria are met. We recommend providing official notification of:
 - a reduction of hours or loss of job where possible. This may include a screen shot of correspondence between you and your employer.
 - Correspondence between you and a real estate agent or landlord regarding rent payment issues
 - Overdue bills
 - Bank statements showing your reduction in income/current financial situation

We do understand that you may not have documentation to support your specific circumstances. You can outline your situation in your personal statement and need to include bank statements from all your bank accounts.

Step 2: Interview with a SAIBT or CELUSA staff member or selection panel

After you submit your application, applicants may be required to attend a Zoom interview and may be asked to provide additional documentation. This requirement will be at the discretion of the selection panel. You may also be asked to provide more documentation before an interview is scheduled.

What happens next

Applications will be managed in order of receipt and then prioritised according to the severity of the hardship so students applying at the same time may receive notification at different times. We will endeavour to provide outcomes to applicants as soon as possible of a fully completed application.

The Hardship (COVID-19) Grant will be awarded by a selection panel on the basis of:

- A fully completed application including all supporting evidence
- Demonstrated severe financial hardship directly related to the COVID-19 pandemic
- Evidence of no or limited access to other sources of financial support (e.g. other grants, community resources)
- Successful academic progress
- Evidence that a grant will address or mitigate hardship and its impact on study and living requirements in the short-term.

The amount awarded to applicants and whether a schedule of payments is required will be at the discretion of the selection panel. The panel's decision will be final.

Applications will open on 20 April 2020 and remain open until further notice. The selection panel will meet regularly and assess eligible applications on a rolling basis.

Meeting the eligibility criteria doesn't guarantee that you'll receive a grant. The grant is designed to provide financial relief to those students impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. An application for a reduction or waiver of tuition fees will not be considered.
